Our approach for November 2021 is:
1. to run exams where safe and permitted, because exams are the most reliable way to assess students
2. to introduce extra temporary measures - such as adjustments, exemptions and expanded special considerations - into our exam requirements, so as many students as possible can access the exams. Our factsheet on adjustments and exemptions provides more details.
3. to accept school assessed-grades in the small number of countries, or regions within countries, where directives from national or local authorities mean that exams cannot go ahead, so students can progress to the next stage in their education or employment without delay.
Details of the entire process for awarding school-assessed grades can be found on our website. This includes the type of evidence required, coverage of syllabus content, security and authentication and internal and external quality assurance.

Guide for universities on our approach to the November 2021 exam series

The pandemic continues to have a significant disruptive impact on teaching, learning and assessment. Cambridge International's main priority is to keep our students safe and make sure they can progress with their next steps in education as planned, and in the fairest way possible.

We continue to work to manage the impact of the pandemic on our November 2021 exam series. For this reason, we have adapted our assessment significantly for this series.
