

The portfolio of evidence: a guide for students and families

In countries or regions of countries where exams cannot take place, we award grades to students in Cambridge IGCSE, O Level and Cambridge International AS & A Level using a portfolio of evidence. The school submits each portfolio of evidence to Cambridge International Education, and Cambridge examiners mark the work.

What is the portfolio of evidence?

Where exams cannot take place, schools will collect and submit a portfolio of evidence for each student in each subject. Each portfolio will contain three substantial pieces of evidence. If you are taking Cambridge International A Level and did not sit the AS Level at the end of your first year of study, six substantial pieces of evidence are required.

The staged assessment route is not possible in all subjects, for example AS and A Level languages. In these cases, the rules are as follows:

- Candidates entered for AS Level will need to provide a single portfolio of evidence with three pieces of work covering the AS Level syllabus content and assessment objectives.
- Candidates entered for A Level will need to provide a single portfolio of evidence with three pieces of work covering the A Level syllabus content and assessment objectives.

By 'substantial', we mean a piece of work that has taken you at least one hour of concentrated work to complete. This is similar to the amount of work we use to determine an exam grade.

These pieces of evidence can be completed at any time during your course, and can include:

- whole past papers covering the current syllabus content
- whole specimen papers from the current syllabus
- whole coursework prepared according to the current syllabus requirements
- work made up of questions selected from various past papers
- papers used as mock exams
- extended project work set by the centre during the course of study
- tasks set by the centre, such as essays, assignments, problems and practical tasks.

Cambridge examiners will mark the work. We will use our examiners' marks to give you a final grade for each syllabus.

Will I know which pieces of work are in my portfolio of evidence?

Yes. Any work you complete during your course may be included in your portfolio of evidence. Once your teacher has selected the three pieces of evidence that will be used, they will tell you which work they have chosen, and you will have the opportunity to give them feedback on their choices. Your teacher cannot simply select your best work. The evidence they choose must cover as broad a range of the syllabus content and skills as possible. Your teacher must also be sure that the evidence is your own unaided work.

The portfolio of evidence: a guide for students and families (continued)

Cambridge examiners will mark the work using the Cambridge marking criteria and marking standard. Your teacher may have marked your work before submitting it to us; however, Cambridge examiners may give it a different mark that will be in line with the Cambridge marking standards.

How will the portfolio of evidence be marked?

Every student will submit a different portfolio of evidence, and the tasks in their portfolio may be different to those of other students in other schools. The school will submit these tasks to Cambridge for marking.

Each syllabus will use one of three different marking approaches used for portfolio of evidence. All three different marking approaches are based on a holistic marking approach:

- Holistic marking using exemplar materials
- Holistic marking using traffic lights
- Holistic marking using level descriptors

There is more information about these marking approaches in Marking a portfolio of evidence here: www.cambridgeinternational.org/portfolio-of-evidence

Our examiners will give a mark to each of the three pieces of evidence. We will add these marks together to create a final mark for the portfolio. All three pieces of evidence will count equally in their contribution to the final mark.

We will use our examiners' marks to calculate a final grade for each student for each syllabus they are taking.

What can I do if I am concerned about the grade awarded using the portfolio of evidence?

All our usual enquiry about results services are available and you should work with the Exams Officer at your school if you would like to request one of these.

In addition, we have a service which is only available for the portfolio of evidence – 'Review of selection of evidence: Service 10'. This is a review of the choice of the pieces of evidence included in your portfolio. As part of this enquiry, we will check that the evidence chosen for your portfolio meets our criteria for selection. This enquiry is available for all portfolio of evidence components. If you would like to request this enquiry, you should speak to your Exams Officer.

We have published more information about enquiries about results in our 'Guidance on enquiries about results and appeals for the portfolio of evidence route' factsheet.
